At the time of transfer a lease-agreement between the Commission and Guy H. Lewis was entered into which permits the Commission to continue to utilize the area for a farm-game development project and field laboratory research activities. The sale of the property will therefore in no way change the program of the Commission which was set up when the area was acquired three years ago.

Game and Fish Commission personnel from Virginia and Tennessee held a conference on May 1 at Bristol, regarding the inter-state improvement on the Holston River which lies both in Virginia and Tennessee.

The inter-state impoundment will extend from the New Aven Bridge in Virginia to the bridge on U. S. Highway 461 in Tennessee, dividing the impoundment so that one-half will lie in Virginia and one-half in Tennessee.

A valid Virginia fishing license will be recognized on the Tennessee side of the impoundment and a valid Tennessee fishing license will be recognized on the Virginia side.

LADINO ACREAGE SHOWS INCREASE

Acreage of Ladino clover and orchard grass continues to climb in Virginia.

W. W. Lewis, Extension agronomist at VPI, says the acreage this year is expected to jump to about 435,000 acres—an increase of 85,000 acres over last year.

The value of the increased acreage, he says, is seen in the answer to this question—"What will a ladino clover and orchard grass pasture do for you?"

In swine production, good pasture will reduce the grain requirements by 10 per cent, and the protein supplement requirements by 50 per cent.

One hundred pounds of digestible nutrients from good permanent pasture will cost about 50 to 60 cents; from a mixed dairy ration, 100 pounds of digestible nutrients will cost about $5.00.

A good system of pastures that will provide at least 240 days of continuous grazing will reduce the feed cost of producing milk by 20 to 25 per cent.

As for beef cattle, you'll be in trouble if you even try to produce them without good pasture.

UNIQUE EXHIBIT AT VA. MUSEUM

A review of the hectic years from 1752 to 1952 as seen through the subtle needle's eye of fashion will be on view through June 1 at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in an exhibition entitled, "Habiliments for Heroines."

This 200-year history of the changing styles in feminine attire is based on actual descriptions as written by authors dating from Tobias Smollett in the mid-eighteenth century to Josephine Pinckney, whose latest novel, "My Son and Foe" was published just this year.

Feeling that the finery of another day is impersonal and even somewhat depressing when taken from a trunk and placed on a dummy, the Virginia Museum decided to design a new kind of costume exhibit and put a spark of life into it, by recreating scenes from famous novels almost exactly as the authors described them.

Sixteen life-sized mannequins, especially constructed " r the Virginia Museum exhibition by the well-known model maker, Mary Brosnan of New Year, wear costumes authentic down to the last bonnet, parasol and dainty shoe. Each heroine, in a dress carefully selected from the extensive collections at the Costume Institute of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Brooklyn Museum, is shown in a scene from the novel that made her famous.

READ THE LABEL WHEN USING PESTICIDES

Read the label when you're using pesticides.

John M. Amos, insect and disease specialist at VPI, says many new chemicals are being developed for pest control, and it pays to read the label so you will know what you are using and how to handle it properly.

Most recommendations for the control of fruit, garden, and flower pests are made in terms of the actual chemical that does the killing, or a coined common name which has been approved for use. This should help eliminate some confusion to the purchaser when he encounters one of the hundreds of trade-named pesticides now on the market—if he reads the label.

Another reason for reading the label is to learn the precautions for handling chemicals. Many chemicals used today to kill insects and diseases are much more toxic to humans than the old-time recommended poisons.

Amos also says all labels are registered with state and federal agencies and must contain the ingredients listed on the container.

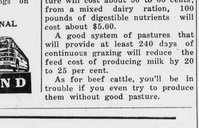
Good for all cars, but...



10 OUT OF 10* cars will run best all year 'round on Esso Extra Gasoline

Though not always apparent to the driver, various gasolines actually do differ in performance. Industry-accepted road and laboratory tests prove that Esso Extra gives a year-'round combination of qualities unmatched by any other gasoline for 9 out of 10 cars in use today. The Extra you always get at the "Happy Motoring" Sign is the big reason why more motorists buy Esso Extra in the area served by Esso Dealers than any other premium gasoline.

*Esso Extra Gasoline is good for ALL cars, but in 9 out of 10 it will give better all-around performance all year 'round than any other gasoline. Only a car with an engine that's poorly adjusted, badly worn, or one with unusual compression characteristics may be unable to use fully the many extra qualities of this great gasoline. See your nearby Esso Dealer today!
